

Application for Journalism Fellowship

Position Title:

Journalist for Justice / Online Communications Leader

Our Journalists for Justice help us keep steady content on OAG's weblog, "The Takeover." While all youth are invited to write for the Takeover without an application, our Journalists for Justice take on the responsibility of writing at least one blog post per week, in order to maintain a steady level of content. The requirements of the position are to research current events in the United States, and document them through a social justice lens. Beyond current events, fellows are welcome to write about particular social issues they care about (eg. sustainability, immigration, poverty, etc.) and about topics of interest to youth in general. Journalists for Justice are given substantial freedom to decide the content and style of their posts.
